Connect With Your Inner Self

There are moments in life that feel so profound and transformative that they lead us to question whether there's some sort of higher "purpose" to our existence. Moments of personal insight are sometimes excruciating and beautiful, all at the same time.

We wonder who's conducting the orchestra. Is it the Universe? Or is it our own Soul?

If you're ready connect with your Inner Self, then this topic is just for you!

3 Takeaways

- Our choice of thoughts (positive or negative) can change the course of our journey
- Our Inner Self doesn't want all the chitter-chatter of negative thoughts. It wants ONLY one thing: A more positive frequency. This frequency of positive thought is the easiest way to connect with our Inner Self.
- When we're leaking our power through negative thoughts, we can't connect.

Assignment:

1. Think of a past situation that was challenging. Write down 5 or 6 negative emotions that were consuming you at that time.
2. Think of a current situation that's challenging you now. Write down 5 or 6 negative thoughts that are persistent and won't go away.
3. Write down 5 or 6 of your best spiritual qualities, the energy that represents who you are when you're centered spiritually.
4. Then choose one of these spiritual qualities that could have helped you through the past situation. Is it the same quality that could help you in the current challenge ... and could it change the course of your journey?
